The Indica-Examination Subjects, &c. The ladies here manifest strange symptoms, ibey seem enchanted at the opportunity of each offer rom the ments with the "dear, good cadeta." NEW JERSEY INTELLIGENCE.

APPRAL PROM THE SOUTH TO THE FIRE DEPARTMENT. ghlin, of the Fire Department, from a commit defining of the Fire Department, from a committee of Independent Engine Company of Columeia, S. C., selicating subscriptions from the Jersey City Fire Department to assist them in building a house for the apparatus presented thom by the New York Firemen's Association. The circular states that the poverty of the Southern grouple and the loss of their property by the fire which devastated their city compels them to fall back on the charity of their friends North. The beneficial regulis of the late grand reunion of the several companies are also set forth.

cases of note before the Recorder yesterday morning were those for drunkenness on the Sabbath. For the last two or three weeks only a few petry offences were disposed of. This city can now favorably contrast with any other in the State as regards the order and morality of its people. A faithful and strict observance of the Benday law will make Jersey City the envy even of its motopolitan sister.

A BOY ACCIDENTALLY HUNGED .- A lad, pamed Charles Lond was found dead in his father's barn, at Elizabeth, on Saturday night. When discovered, he was found hanging between two bars of a manger. He had been in the upper part of the barn, looking for hems' nests, and he had accidentally fallen into the position stated.

A Negro Shot and Instantly Killed—The Mur-derer in Custody.

On Saturday night last the usual quietude which pre-veils over the locality of Two Bridges, Westfield town-abis, R. J., was broken by the commission of a murder. The victum in the present instance is a negro named rge Firman, and the murderer, who is also colored, own as Sylventer Quiller. The particulars are as

About two months age deceased and his wife were childed to move in a barn near Quiller's residence, but feasily the latter took the two into his house until they could find apartmenta. The house contained two rooms, the entrance door leading directly into the front room, cocupied by Quiller. The other room had been given up to Firman. About six o'clock on Saturday last an alteraction assued between the two men in regard to Firman enough the room. Both had been drinking freely, as is usual in all similar causes. A quarrel occurred which resulted in the death of Firman. After hard words had passed between the two Quiller proceeded to remove a portion of deceased's fursiture from the house, when threats were made. A dreather-in-law of the accused then called Quiller and each to the residence of a Mr. Hatfield, half a mile distant from the scene of murden, and asked to borrow a gun, stating that he wished to hill a skunk under a barn. He was at first refused, an the ground that he might set fire to the barn; but had seed by hock to within about ten feet of the house and each hills skunk under a barn. He was at first refused, an the ground that he might set fire to the barn; but of the gun was given to him. He then walked directly back to within about ten feet of the house and each the occupied the door to go out of the house Quiller raised the gun to his shoulder and, awaying "Oome out of there you damned nigger." fired. The contents of the gun entered the body of deceased sear the heart, and literally tore away the lungs and a portion of the heart, and crushing the back bone—the gun temp heavily loaded with shot. The wound was large enough to admit a closed hand. After committing the deed Quiller returned the gun to Mr. Hatfield paid no further attention to the matter until the truth of the man's statements was too truly corroborated. Quiller father man's statements was too truly corroborated. Quiller father man's statements was too truly corroborated quiller fine eastedly, but his story was not there believed, an whom he was yesterday taken to the Union county jail at Elizabeth.

A corener's inquest was held at Rahway on Sunday, when a verdict was rendered that "George Firman came to his death from the effects of a gunshet wound, the gun being in the hands of Sylvester Quiller, and that said givester Quiller is guilty of wifful murder." Justice Esphan Jackson, the Coroner, thereupon committed the acoused to the county jail, there to remain until debread by due course of law.

Through the courtey of Mr. A. A. Ward, the Warden of the Jiaon county jail, the writer was allowed an interview with the prisoner. Quiller is lightly built, of short stakure, and aged about thirty, and has an expression of dee," carractiness. He spoke freely of the occurrence admixting his guilt, but stated that he had no bleation of tilling deceased. He expresses a being however, that the punishment will be at least twenty rears, confinement in the State Prison, if he excapes septial punishment. He appears to be an intelligent segro. His statement of the occurrence is as follows:

Peocassed and wife had been obliged to live in a barn hear his house, and fasting a sympathy for them he him a lofts while be found out that they were not locking for other rooms, and as he would not take any mouse from them for his services to them he felt they were imposing on him, and sent times he felt they were imposing on him, and sent times he told them names where the could. On the night of the murder had both been drinking. Firman began the trouble by insulting the prisoner, using bad language, and he (Quiller) made up his mind he should leave. Quilter took two of his chairs and put them outside when Firman said. "Don't touch another thing or I will cut you open." Prisoner's brother-in-law then called him seide and told him that Firman would kill him of he did not let him alone. He then borrowed a gun, thinking he would seare Firman away. After retting the run he went to the house and told deceased to come out. He came to the deer and said something, when he raised the gun; it went off, but he uidn't mean to do it. He returned the gun and tried to give himself up to the squires; but they didn't believe he had killed any one. On Sunday he was arrested.

The excellent caused by the murder is intense, the residents of the locality where the crime was committed having been heretofore free from any crime of magnitude.

Firman, the deceased, had a bad reputation, being known as a common that it is the sent means.

Firman, the deceased, had a bad reputation, being known as a common thief in his neighborhood. He had served terms in the jail at New Brunswick, and had once made his escape from that place of confinement. He was about rixty years of age.

Visit of a Commissioner to Time Berald Detablishment and was escerted through the various departments of the building. The Commissioner examined the interior arrangements of the editorial rooms with much interest, and expressed himself much surprised at the systematic management displayed therein. The composing room struck him with unbounded amazement, with its mysterious processes and the number of men employed in it. In the stereotyping department, however, he was more at home, and professed a knowledge of the entire process, having, he said, read a detailed account of it, published in a Japanese journal, which had translated it from an American newspaper. What surprised him moet of all, however, were the engines and professed in the basement of the building, and he spent some time in examining, after the inquisitive Japanese fashion, every detail of their construction and in asking innumerable questions in reference to their capacity and the manner of working them. On leaving the building, after having spent some time in admiration of its business office arrangements, both astonished and delighted with the establishmen
